HONGKONG, FEBRUARY 9th, 1914.

Some of the London papers last month gave prominence to what was described as "a remarkable revelation of the present state of business in China," made by a certain Mr. J. DRYDEN WITKINS in an article contributed to the Leather World. According to The Globe, "Mr. WITKINS' exposure of the amazing corruption which is stopping the eager growth of Chinese trade refers specifically, of course, to his own industry, but it throws an equally vivid light on the general situation." Who Mr. WITKINS is we do not know, but we gather from such extracts of his article as we have seen that he is, or was, connected with a tannery enterprise in Canton. He writes such amazing balderdash that it is surprising that any responsible London paper can reproduce it without reservation of any kind, as though it were gospel. The reader is told that all trade questions in China are dependent on politics, and the governing idea of the article is to represent that the Young China party stands for progress and honesty, whilst business under the Manchus, and under the autocratic rule of YUAN SHIH-KAI, is a system of corruption. Among other things, he says it is essential to realise that the interests of the bulk of the British community in the Far East are utterly opposed to the manufacturers at home. "The bulk of the merchants are also opposed to an enlightened China, and an honest Administration there is a nightmare to them. This would mean, it is true, a great trade boom in Europe, but it would entail the practical extinction of the firms of middlemen in the East." Again we read that YUAN SHIH-KAI "owes his position to the moral and financial support of the Powers—excluding America, who favours honest government in China—and this support was given him owing, first, to the crass ignorance of things Chinese in Europe, and, secondly, to the influence of Europeans in the East, who can only remain there profitably so long as China is throttled by corruption." The person who can write such stuff and nonsense as this hardly deserves to be taken seriously, but it is a serious matter to have these gross libels on the British community published so widely in responsible London papers. Mr. WITKINS gives an illustration of how business is done in China in the following terms:—

For the benefit of readers who are unacquainted with the Chinese officials' method of doing business, I will endeavour to convey a rough idea of the way in which a tannery might come into existence anywhere in China. The idea would probably originate with a native employee of some European firm in Hongkong or a treaty port.

He would inform his firm that he could obtain an order for a tannery from some provincial Government by paying a good "squeeze" to, say, the local "admiral." When his own commission was settled, he would dangle the bait of a squeeze of $20,000 to $30,000 ($2,000 to $3,000) before the aforesaid admiral. Follows some months of negotiation and intricate apportioning of "squeeze."

Finally, the European firm receives a firm offer of a contract to build and equip a tannery for the Government at a total cost of, say, $300,000, provided:—

1.—They pay the "admiral" (or, more probably, his nominee) $50,000; and other officials various sums, each amount having been nicely adjusted to the value of their political "pull"; in all probability another $30,000.

2.—They shall supply statistics, etc., which can be used by the officials to prove to the public that this tannery supplies a "long-felt want," and that the local officials are a set of high-minded men, existing solely for the benefit of the public.

3.—They pay Ah Foo (a local contractor) $100,000 to erect the premises according to plans already in existence. This clause is put in to satisfy some underlings in the various Government departments; they will get their "squeeze" from Ah Foo. That is by no means the end of these financial "arrangements." Ah Foo will have to buy his cement, etc., from certain specified firms, each of whom will also pay "squeeze"—and so on and so forth.

4.—They provide certain machinery, tools, and fixtures for the said premises. (This is least important.)

The above is the state of Chinese trade under the Manchus, or, as at present, Yuan Shih-kai.

It is possible that the illustration given as to how business is done in China may have some sort of foundation in fact, but to argue from a particular case that the European merchants generally in China live upon such a system of corruption, and that their occupation would be gone were China to come under the enlightened rule of the Canton party, would be more properly described as an amazing libel than as a "remarkable revelation."

Possibly there are firms who lend themselves to the "squeeze" practice which has been described as indigenous in the Orient for many generations. Rumours of this nature have not been unheard of in the past, but we can recall none with which the name of a reputable British firm has been associated. Unquestionably the conditions under which Government business is usually done in Asiatic countries, combined with the tacitly acknowledged fact that the Chinese official lives on "squeeze" rather than on his paltry salary, are well calculated to tempt some European firms to "do in Rome as the Romans do."

But it cannot be too strongly asserted and emphasised that the British firms doing business in China, so far from condoning and acquiescing in the pernicious and wide-spread "squeeze" system, set their faces rigidly against it, and welcome all attempts made by the Chinese Government to purify the administration of such practices. To represent that the abolition of "squeeze" in China would mean the abolition of the British merchant is a slander which only an ill-informed and irresponsible scribbler could write. The British merchant in China, as elsewhere, stands for business morality, and there certainly is nothing he would welcome more than the suppression of the corrupt and dishonest official, so as to ensure "a fair field and no favour" in all business transactions. What Mr. WITKINS says in one part of his article about an honest administration entailing the extinction of the firms of middlemen in the East he confutes in another part where he tells us that during 1912, when the foreign trade returns exceeded the record of any previous year, the Canton party were in the ascendant; that "they were honest, well-educated men, and during their short term of power many business schemes were evolved—schemes which were only possible because good government was assured, and, in the South, at any rate 'squeeze' was dead." That being so, the foreign middleman ought, by Mr. WITKINS' own showing, to be "practically extinct." To say that "good government was assured" in 1912, when the Canton Party was in the ascendant, was surely the very opposite of true. Indeed, one would have to go back many years to find a parallel to the anarchy which prevailed in China in 1912. While readily admitting that there were "honest, well-educated men" in the Cantonese Party, the annals of the times afford plenty of justification for the President's caustic criticism of the recognised leaders of the Party as "brigands and housebreakers who had plundered the nation in the name of Republican virtues."

HONGKONG PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

In spite of the heavy rain which fell on Saturday evening the concert given by the Hongkong Philharmonic Society in the Theatre Royal attracted a crowded audience, additional seats having to be provided. Though it probably was the best attended concert in the history of the Society, it can hardly be said that it was the best concert. The weakness was in the individual numbers rather than in the chorus. Mr. Denman Fuller is indeed to be highly complimented as usual upon the degree of efficiency to which he had trained the large chorus as well as the Orchestra. Both acquitted themselves very creditably indeed. The concert opened with Gounod's "Soldiers' Chorus" which was well rendered by the Chorus and Orchestra. The second number was a pleasing Pastoral by the Orchestra. Then came a couple of part songs by the chorus—"March of the Men of Harlech" and "The Bluebells of Scotland." A Sonata for violin and piano from Rubenstein's Opus 13 followed. Four movements were given, Frau Amy Lund playing the violin and Mrs. Grove the piano. Though it was open to the criticism of occupying too much time, the number was one of the features of the concert, for both ladies are accomplished musicians. A part song, Barnby's "Silent Night," came next, being beautifully rendered by Mrs. Cromie, Miss L. White, Mrs. Goldsmith, Mrs. Goodman, Mr. R. Peyton Griffin, Mr. J. W. White, Mr. F. A. Biden, and Mr. A. J. England. The first part of the programme concluded with a delightful rhapsody by Mr. Denman Fuller, for piano and orchestra, on a very well known air, with apologies to Mr. Paul Rubens and others. The well-known air was "The Miller's Daughter," and the performance elicited an encore. Mr. E. J. Chapman conducted for this item.

Part II. of the programme consisted of selections from Planquette's opera "Les Cloches de Corneville," as follows:—"Chorus and Solo," "All who for years," "Miss L. White and Mr. A. J. England." Song—"On a hill-top rocking."

Solo and Chorus—"Legend of the Bells," Mr. H. I. Jones.

Song—"From pallid lips," Mrs. ROBERTSON.

Solo and Chorus—"With joy my heart," Mr. A. G. McDONALD.

Duet—"('Tis not that I am so lowly," Miss CHARLOTTE and Mr. R. PETERSON GRUFFY.

Recit. Air and Chorus—"Silent heroes," Mr. A. J. ENGLAND.

Duet—"Love is a Secret," Miss L. WHITE and Mr. R. BROWN.

Chorus and Recit—"The Ghosts," Mr. R. BROWN and Mr. A. J. ENGLAND.

Solo and Chorus—"Song of the Beggars," Mr. H. I. JONES.

Solo—"That Night I'll never forget," Mr. W. B. CAWSEY.

Solo and Chorus—"Dear friends of my youth," Miss L. WHITE, Mrs. GONSMITH, Mr. C. J. HICORNSTON, Mr. A. G. McDONALD.

"Les Cloches de Corneville" was especially orchestrated for this concert by Mr. Denman Fuller. Mr. Jones' "Legend of the Bells" and Mr. Cawsey's "That night I'll never forget" specially appealed to the audience, who demanded encores.

At the end of the concert, which was reached about midnight, the audience testified their appreciation by hearty applause.

INTERNATIONAL RUGBY.

WALES SLIGHTLY SUPERIOR TO SCOTLAND.

LONDON, February 7th.

Fine weather prevailed for the International match at Cardiff between Wales and Scotland, and there were 50,000 spectators.

Straight from the kick-off the Scottish three-quarters got away and scored, the try being converted. After this there was a magnificent contest between the Welsh forwards and the Scottish backs. Wales played up remarkably; and before half-time had scored a dropped goal and a penalty goal, thus leading by seven points to five upon crossing over.

There was much enthusiasm in the second half. The Welsh forwards were repeatedly getting the ball from the scrum and the halves as frequently sent the ball out to the three-quarters, yet though the Scottish team were obviously out-played, there was no more scoring. Wales thus won by the half-time margin.

SOUTH AFRICA AND THE LABOUR TROUBLES.

VIEWS OF THE BRITISH PRESS.

LONDON, February 7th.

Mr. Smuts' speech is heartily praised by the Conservative evening newspapers, and is hailed as completely vindicating the Union Government's action. All the papers emphasise the references to the overwhelming black population.

The Westminster Gazette characterises the speech as a long, able, and skilful statement. It emphasises the point that Liberals do not challenge the plea of exceptional emergency. It says there are, however, special circumstances affecting the whole Empire, the chief of which is the deportations, which is really rather an evasion of the difficulty than a sign of strength. The journal points out that the Imperial Government did not deport Mr. Cole from its own jurisdiction. A parallel case would be if the Union Government ordered an individual not to live in a native reserve but permitted him to live in Cape Town or Johannesburg.

The deportations raised questions of law and policy affecting the Empire which must be most carefully discussed. The common-sense view seems to be that the self-governing Colonies should consume their own smoke and not pass it on to others.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF SOUTH AFRICA TO RETIRE.

HIS SUCCESSOR APPOINTED.

LONDON, February 7th.

The London papers state that Mr. C. F. Masterman, Under Secretary of State in the Home Department, will shortly succeed the Right Hon. Sydney Buxton, as Postmaster-General, as the latter is to be elevated to the peerage, having been appointed as successor to Lord Gladstone, Governor-General of South Africa, who has long been desirous of retiring from his post.

While the Daily Chronicle and the Morning Post consider that it is unlikely that the Governor-General will now retire until June, owing to the recent crisis, the Labourite organ, the Daily Citizen, asserts that Lord Gladstone's resignation will be announced on the first day of the re-assembling of Parliament, and that he will be returning home with the least possible delay.

Jockheer, and A. H. Skelton (Consulting Committee), A. E. Crappell, G. R. Edwards, H. H. Bond, A. Ritchie, T. G. Wall, and S. R. Carhill (Secretary).

The Secretary having read the notice calling the meeting, the Chairman said: "With your permission I will dispense with the formality of reading the report and accounts. The profits for the year under review amount to $84,744.63, as against $53,877.46 for the previous year, which shows a healthy progress, and with which I trust you will be satisfied. Your property has been well kept up during the year out of current revenue, and in spite of the two typhoons I am glad to say we have not had to fall back on either the special repair or insurance funds. Last year I alluded to the possibility of selling two of your oldest wooden boats, but I regret to say the negotiations were unsuccessful. In explanation of the sum we recommended being set aside for depreciation, I would remind you that five of the boats, those taken over from the Hongkong Steam Waterboat Company, are considerably older than the rest. Three of these are still in fairly good order, but two of them we cannot expect to last very much longer, and it will probably be necessary to replace at least one of them in the near future. With regard to your investments, although perhaps hardly necessary, I feel sure you will approve of our adopting the usual course and writing them down to their market value on 31st December. Beyond these few remarks, gentlemen, I think the report and accounts call for no further comment, but before proposing their adoption, I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability any questions you may desire to ask."

There being no questions, the Chairman proposed the adoption of the report and accounts.

Mr. Crappell seconded, and it was carried unanimously.

Mr. Wall proposed the re-election of Mr. A. O. D. Gourdin as auditor at a remuneration of $100.

Mr. Bond seconded, and it was agreed to.

The Chairman: "That is all the business, gentlemen. I thank you for your attendance. Dividend warrants are now ready."

EXTRAORDINARY FORTUNE-TELLING CASE.

FURTHER REMARKABLE EVIDENCE AT THE MAGISTRACY.

Before Mr. F. A. Hazeland at the Magistracy on Saturday, the hearing was resumed of the case wherein two Indians, Jawa Singh and Nanh Singh, of the Sikh Temple, Wanchai, were charged with unlawfully pretending to tell fortunes and "with subtle craft and palmistry" endeavouring to impose upon John J. Lysaught.

Mr. J. H. Gardiner and Mr. Leo d'Almada appeared for the first and second defendants respectively.

Mr. Gardiner said he had seen the Hon. Mr. McL. Messer and he was willing that the case should be withdrawn.

Complainant, however, wished the case to go on, and continued his evidence from the last hearing. He had, he said, to send out for the whisky and soap which he had promised the Indians. The first defendant again asked to see his hands and, looking at them, said "You had better go upstairs and wash them and dry them well." He did so. Defendant afterwards said, "Your hands are clean; but close them. In fortune telling there is good and bad fortune, and if I tell you bad you must not be angry. What figure you see in your left hand is your bad fortune or liabilities and what you have got in your right hand is your good fortune." Complainant opened his left hand. There was nothing on it; but on the right there was $25,000. The figures were in black, as though they had been printed there. All the while the second defendant was "fanning" him. The first defendant proceeded, "Now about Miss Fortune. I don't think it is advisable to get rid of her so quickly. I will give you two flowers if you will promise me that whatever present she gives you in the shape of money you will give to me. Of course, you will have a good time and I will have the money. I will pray for you, and your wife will be quite happy and there will be no trouble in the family whatsoever. Your wife is a woman of very bad temper and if you pray, she will be good to you and you will have to be good to her. If I were not for her you would have been dead two days ago; you would have been strung up by the neck. You are a man of very quick temper, and she has control of your temper. You are something like a hare, and the man who did you harm, the man who is jealous of you, he is like a turtle. Do you remember reading at all about the hare and the turtle who ran a race? It says the hare ran half way and said the turtle could not beat him, so he went to sleep, and when he awoke he found that the turtle had won." Witness asserted that defendant then hit him in the ribs and said, "Heard, don't you tell anybody, not even your wife, what I have said, because you will lose your fortune and I shall lose my profession. Of course, you will feel worried about your father. He knows where you are, and wants to speak to you." Defendant then asked for a blanket, and when told that was one in the boys' room said that was no good. At that moment the house boy returned with the whisky and soap, which he handed to the defendant, who asked him to write something, saying he had given them the whisky, as an excuse officer might want to know from where he (defendant) had got it.

In answer to Mr. Gardiner, complainant said his father was at one time an inspector in the Naval Dockyard.

Mr. Gardiner: "Do you suggest you were in a trance all this time?" After the time that he touched me, I had no will of my own.

You had no will but you had a good memory?—It has all come back to me since.

Can you account for him getting this power over you?—My mind seemed to be wandering all the time.

Mr. d'Almada asked complainant to explain how he had been imposed upon and he said that defendant "touched" him.

Could you not have kicked him out?—I was powerless. I had no mind of my own.

Do you suggest if you were in a trance you would be able to tell us all that happened? It is ridiculous!—My mind was not my own.

Complainant maintained that he was imposed upon.

Mr. d'Almada:—How were you deceived? He told you your past perfectly accurately and your present; about the future no one can say.

His Worship bound the defendants over in the sum of $100 to come up for judgment when called upon. He warned them not to continue their practice, otherwise they would be liable to three months imprisonment.

CHINESE COOK STRANGLED.

The dead body of a cook named Yu Wing, 18 years of age, was found in the cook house at the Naval Depot on Friday. A schoolboy found the deceased lying dead, bound hand and foot. He had apparently been strangled. The deceased was employed by several Chinese employees of the Naval Dockyard. Robbery appeared to be the motive, as several boxes were broken open and clothing and money to the total value of $29 stolen.

THE INDECENT PICTURE CASE.

MAGISTRATE CONVICTS SINCERE COMPANY.

At the Magistracy yesterday Mr. J. R. Wood (second Magistrate) gave his decision in the case in which the manager of the Sincere Co., Chan Harr, was charged with exhibiting for sale indecent pictures.

His Worship said—I have no hesitation in deciding that these articles sold by defendant are pictures of an obscene and indecent character. No doubt in trying to justify in this Court the sale of the pictures, the defendant has exercised a legal right; but there are some legal rights which it is creditable not to exercise, and this is one. On the facts found by the evidence the defendant is liable to be convicted either of the offence against the provisions of the Vagrancy Act, 1824, alleged as the first charge, or of this offence, against the Common Law. Both charges have been brought against him; they are substantially similar, and have been brought as alternative charges.

I find that both charges have been proved. It remains to consider whether to proceed to conviction on the first or second charge. The charge laid under the Vagrancy Act is a summary charge. Conviction under this Act catologues the offender among rogues and vagabonds along with other disreputable persons. Under this Act, the Magistrate may inflict a sentence of three months' imprisonment with hard labour; and in this Colony the Magistrate has no power to impose any sentence for this offence except one of imprisonment without the option of a fine. In England the Courts have been empowered by Statute to impose for this offence a fine not exceeding $25. This provision of the law has not been adopted in this Colony, and if the first charge stood alone in the present proceedings the Court would be placed in this position, that it must either impose a sentence of imprisonment upon the defendant or it can impose no sentence at all.

The second charge alleged a Common Law misdemeanour. This is an indictable offence. A prisoner tried at the Criminal Sessions of the Supreme Court on such an indictment may receive a sentence of twelve months' imprisonment with hard labour or may be ordered to pay a fine not exceeding $500. At the outset of the hearing of this case, the Deputy Superintendent of Police requested the Court to exercise summary jurisdiction in this matter. This request was acceded to. The limit of the magistrate's powers in summary jurisdiction is to sentence the defendant to six months' imprisonment with hard labour, or, in his discretion, to impose a fine not exceeding $100. In considering what conviction it is just to record and what punishment to select, I have to remember that this matter has not been recently brought to public notice in the Colony through any criminal prosecution. For this reason, it would seem somewhat harsh to sentence the defendant to imprisonment. This consideration will, however, not avail persons selling indecent pictures after this date. A future offence will assume a grave character through the publicity which may be given to the present conviction. At this time when the younger generation is eager for what is new or may be attracted to things of good report, a heavy responsibility rests upon those few commercial men who, like Chan Harr, stoop to seek a profit in exciting the base passions and desires.

The defendant is convicted on the second charge—that of the Common Law misdemeanour—and is fined $100.

The Deputy Superintendent of Police (Mr. T. H. King) asked for an order to destroy the exhibits. He did not believe there was any objection.

Mr. Otto Kong Sing, who appeared for the defence, asked his Worship to retain the exhibits in Court pending further action.

COAL GODOWN COLLAPSES.

HIGHWAY BLOCKED AT WANCHAI.

On Saturday afternoon, between five and six o'clock, a one-storied coal godown situated between Wanchai Road and the Prince East suddenly collapsed. The building fell outwards right on to the road, absolutely blocking all traffic for some considerable while. Several riches were passing along at the time, and their occupants had extremely narrow escapes from injury. Fortunately the tram-car lines were quickly cleared. The Fire Brigade were not called, coolies employed in the Public Works Department being despatched with praiseworthy promptitude to the scene for the purpose of clearing the road. A large quantity of coal was stored in the godown at the time. No human beings were inside, but some thirty or forty coolies were working in the building about two hours before its collapse. We understand that the godown belonged to the Humphreys Estate and Building Company.

UNITED SERVICES LEAGUE.—DIVISION 2.

SS COX, R.G.A. V. HONGKONG POLICE.
Quite a good fight was put up between these two sides on Saturday at Happy Valley; both clubs were all out for a victory that would put them well in the running for the top places in the league list, and it required more than the down-pour of rain that attended the fixture to make them relax their efforts in the slightest. Prior to lining out for this game the Police had lost six points against the five dropped by SS Cox. Teams:—SS Cox, R.G.A.:—Allen; Sandford and Pallant; Townsend, Stanley, and Buckland; Falconer, Desborough, Watson, Corby, and Draper. Police:—Swan; J. Clark and Cave; Drury, Gardner, and Burlington; Grim-mith, Reynolds, A. Clark, King, and Wilson.

Referee:—Mr. F. W. Eager.
From the commencement of the game it was evident that everyone was out for a win and with big heavy men everywhere plenty of good hard knocks were given and taken with the utmost relish. The players were kept well in hand and the play never became dirty. Although both goalkeepers had plenty to do they were well covered by their backs and the score sheets were kept clean until eight minutes from half-time when Watson scored with a beauty.

The second half was but a continuation of the first with the Company holding the upper hand. "Digger" and Watson leading many attacks on Swan. One of these settled the game, Corby easily steering the ball past the helpless Swan. With their two goals lead and some of their opponents a bit blown the Gunners were inclined to hang on the slack a trifle. Their drenched admirers from the touch-line kept them going with remarks wise and otherwise and they managed to retain the lead to the end, finishing good winners. Final score:—SS Cox, two goals; Police nil.

THE JAPANESE NAVAL SCANDAL.

OFFICERS DENY BRIBERY CHARGES.

Upon the alleged bribery case coming to light the naval authorities in Tokyo summoned from Kure and other Naval Stations all the officers said to be connected with the case.
Engineer Rear-Admiral Fujii, of the Materials Section in the Tokyo Admiralty, who is alleged to be involved in the case, is quoted by the Nichi Nichi as denying the charge brought against him. In the early stages of the late war, he said, he was sent to England as an inspector of vessels being built, and stayed there for two years and a half. During his service he had never handled articles manufactured by Siemens-Schuckert, as reported by foreign telegrams and in the Japanese Press, nor was he concerned in transactions with the German Company in any way. Under his direction there were certain graduates of the College of Engineering in the Tokyo Imperial University, to whom were entrusted the task of examining electrical goods manufactured and supplied by the German Company. During his stay in England he did not purchase any goods from the Company.

He did, however, visit Germany once in connection with other business. Transactions between the Japanese naval authorities and foreign firms were carried on very strictly, and particulars relating thereto had to be reported to the Tokyo Admiralty, which, upon examining all documents, paid all accounts. There was, therefore, no opportunity for him to commit any dishonest practices, as alleged in various quarters.
Rear-Admiral Ide, who is also alleged to be implicated in the case, states that from 1911 to June, 1913, he was in England as Naval Attaché to the Japanese Embassy in London, and as a shipbuilding inspector. He admitted that in purchasing articles from foreign firms he adopted "a strong and unreserved attitude," as reported in certain Tokyo papers last week. During this period, acting in obedience to instruction from Tokyo he purchased searchlight apparatus and other articles from Siemens-Schuckert, whose output was second to none in quality. There was, therefore, no necessity for the Company to resort to such mean practices as the giving of bribes for the purpose of securing orders from any party. Accounts for these goods were paid the Company from Tokyo by cheque, so that he had no chance of "squeezing" any money, as alleged.

The same paper further stated that the Tokyo Admiralty has wired Mr. Suji-mura, Japanese Ambassador in Berlin, asking him to obtain copies of all documents examined and read in the Berlin Court last week in regard to the case, and to forward them to Tokyo. These will be sent via Siberia, and are expected in about two weeks. Pending their arrival, the authorities will refrain from examining certain officers charged with corrupt practices.—Japan Gazette.

SHRINERS OR SOMETHING.

AMERICANS' IDEA OF HONGKONG.

For the past few days over two hundred Americans, each with a holiday spirit, have been "doing" Hongkong and those places of interest within easy reach as only the American tourist can. Every building and place of note has been searched, not scanned, and each particle of historic embellishment has been fished out and discussed. Hongkong residents have asked, impressed by such a big family of Uncle Sam's citizens, "Who are all these people?" and the enigmatical reply has been, "Oh, Shriners or something."

A Daily Press representative was able to detain one of the holiday-makers (Mr. S. T. Coupling) sufficiently long enough, though it was a conversational struggle to do so—to discover something about these "Shriners or something," and why they are taking this delightfully roaming holiday as one big and happy family. "We are Freemasons in a sense," he said, "only we are a higher body than the ordinary Mason. We are practically all members of the 'Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.' We are 32 degrees above the Scottish Rites, and one must be a Knight Templar to become a member. We have temples all over the United States, and we have all come from different parts, different Temples." Their object, he said, was to initiate a new Class at Manila, this being done previous to their journeying on to Hongkong. The Manila Class was really instituted by the Nile Temple (Seattle), but Shriners from various other temples in the United States grasped the opportunity for an ideal holiday, hence the large party. At present the Manila Shriners cannot boast of a Temple, yet the Class had the honour of being visited by representatives of no less than 20 Temples, a truly remarkable pilgrimage.

And the Shriners were immensely pleased with the whole-hearted manner in which the Manila Shriners are progressing. There were no less than fifty members of the Class, mostly business and professional Americans. The pilgrims were royally entertained, and the re-union of fellow-countrymen and countrywomen was the occasion of real holiday making. So much so, that when two days out on the journey to Hongkong the following wireless message reached the Shriners on the Minnesota:—"Manila is in gloom, return at once."

The mystic emblem of the Shriners, three large illuminated copies of which were hung on prominent parts of the Minnesota's rigging, caused much wonder among the other craft—ferry tugs, and similitars on the mast of a vessel look very weird and awesome at night, and the captains of vessels must have wondered and glanced back often. The same thing caused many people in Hongkong to wonder; this strange apparition hovering over the harbour. It is a truly mystic emblem of Mystic Shriners. Our representative was also informed that many handsome Temples have been erected by the Shriners in the States, the Arabic Temple costing no less than half a million dollars gold.

All the Shriners are favourably impressed with Hongkong. "Most of us were surprised at the character, the architectural character, of the City," said Mr. Coupling. "Nearly all the large buildings where we come from are built of wood, and thus these huge granite buildings are novel, and we did not expect to see such things here. And your streets are fine, and broad and clean, and that we did not expect to find in the East." [The D.P.W. will doubtless preserve this testimonial.] Canton and Macao are being visited before the Minnesota leaves Hongkong on 12th inst. Not all the Shriners will go home direct. Several of their number, having come so far, intend to circle the world before they return to their various States. The visit of the Shriners taxed the hotel accommodation of the City to its utmost, and though several had to return to the ship they took things in that philosophical frame of mind inseparable from the American on holiday.

The Prinz Ludwig, the first German liner to call at Manila this year on the homeward trip, is reported in the Manila papers to have taken "more than half a hundred passengers" from the port. The N.D.L. mail steamers are to call at Manila once a month for four months.
